

Gotham's Chefs Refuse to Give Culinary Lessons to Parisians

Special Dispatch to The Star.

NEW YORK, August 3.—New York's famous French chefs have refused pointblank to return to their motherland to teach the new generation of French chefs in Paris how to cook.

It develops that the rich American tourists sojourning in Paris this season have made long, loud and bitter complaints against the French method of preparing French dishes.

"You don't know how to cook French dishes over here any more," they said. "Why don't you send to New York and get some one to come over and show you how we eat on Broadway and 5th avenue?"

Many foreigners would have resented this slur upon their culinary art. There are small, secluded and exclusive restaurants in Paris which probably did resent it. But the gay houses, which cater to the tourist trade, began to see they must do something to hold the American trade.

They sent frantic appeals to some of the New York chefs to come home and save the French reputation—the French cuisine. They said that the Americans had got some well developed ideas as to what French cooking should be and the Paris cooks were at their wits' ends to find out what was wanted.

Finding the New Yorkers placidly self-satisfied with life on this side of the ocean and not eager to return to that Paris and her boulevards, the French restaurant proprietors and hotel keepers began to play upon their thirst.

Why live in that dry America? they cabled. Come back to Paris, where the wines of infinite variety and ancient vintage lend their inimitable aid to a right sort of cookery and where the proper Bordeaux, Burgundies and champagnes might be drunk with the various courses which go to make up the satisfying repast; also where a "verre du fin" makes after-dinner coffee taste like after-dinner coffee.

But even this subtle appeal did not shake the New York chefs. They have found a way to cook without wine—or without a very lavish use of it, anyway. Rene Anjard, Louis Paquet, Fred Coquin and a number of other representative French chefs of the metropolis announced today they would stick to their adopted land. Furthermore, they have culled upon their brother chefs scattered throughout the country to resist the call of the motherland, holding that if the chefs of Paris would know good French cooking let them come to America and learn.

"It is a sadness to the French chefs, this complaint of the Americans that they no longer cook in Paris," said Rene Anjard today. "But we can do nothing. These wonders of electric stoves and other American appliances, they are not known in France."

"If it is true the Americans are pleased with cooking they find in Holland and Germany, then we must not let them be disappointed in Paris. But we do not go. Let them send their young men to us. We will teach them to cook a la Americain."

KILLED IN LINE OF DUTY.

Twenty-Two Prohibition Enforcement Officers Lose Lives.

Twenty-two federal prohibition enforcement officers have been killed in line of duty. Commissioner Haynes has announced in a resume of reports from the various state directors.

rectors.

The number of men killed enforcing the liquor laws, however, it was said, is perhaps twice that number, as the list made public included only federal agents, and did not include prohibition officers serving under state codes and officials of counties and municipalities which had not been officially reported.

Texas led the list of twelve states where killings have taken place, with four deaths. Five states, Tennessee, Georgia, Virginia, Oklahoma and Alabama, had a record of two each.

A servant girl found a live monkey in the letter box of a hotel in the city of Leamington, England. The monkey escaped from a sailor, sought refuge in the hotel, put the cat to flight, and then retired to the letter box for the night.

MAJ. WILSON TO HOSPITAL.

MAJ. CURY L. WILSON, Coast Artillery Corps, at Baltimore, has been ordered to this city for treatment at Walter Reed General Hospital.

BIELASKI WATCHED BY 12 DETECTIVES

Mexican Government Keeps Up Surveillance Pending Disposal of Case.

By the Associated Press. MEXICO CITY, August 3.—Twelve detectives are stationed about the United States embassy to guard the movements of A. Bruce Bielaski, who, with his wife, has been the guest of George T. Summerlin, the American charge d'affaires, for over a week. It is learned that the hospitality of the embassy was offered so as to relieve Mrs. Bielaski of embarrassing police surveillance.

Bielaski finished his business affairs a week ago, but the failure of the Cuernavaca court to announce a decision in his case delayed his departure. Senor Barcenas and Mme. Milo have both been cleared of complicity in the kidnapping case and now are here. Montes de Oca, the chauffeur, also charged with complicity, remains in jail, while Col. Goldbaum Padilla, who was detailed by President Obregon to investigate the case, is said to be facing court-martial for exceeding his authority in ordering the pursuit of the bandits called off. None of the members of the kidnapping party has been identified.

EMMA MINE REOPENS.

Zinc, Silver and Lead Ore Shut Down Since January, 1921.

BUTTE, Mont., August 3.—Reopening of the Emma mine, one of the zinc, silver and lead producing properties of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, was announced today. It is expected to be hoisting ore by Monday.

About 125 men will be employed on the property. This will make the fourteenth mine of the company to resume operation. It had been shut down since January, 1921.

When three is not a crowd

When one is Clicquot and the other two are you and she. For Clicquot Club Ginger Ale is a friendly drink, each bottle containing enough for her full glass and yours.

And what a happy, living drink Clicquot is! It is fascinating to watch the glittering bubbles leap through the gold, break in tiny splashes and scatter the ginger-perfumed air they hold.

But the taste of Clicquot Club counts most. Young, old, or in between—they all like it.

Everything in Clicquot is pure. No water but that drawn from unfailing, cold, pure springs is used, and only real, Jamaica ginger.

Should you like variety

You are not limited to Ginger Ale. There are Clicquot Club Sarsaparilla, Root Beer and Birch Beer. Each one different in taste, but all equally pure and desirable. Buy Clicquot by the case for the home.
